In most cases the localize method of TermRepresentation_L10n is used and this uses LocaleContext.getLanguages(); to get the local languages. To use the term language of the editor a new method which has a list of languages as parameter is implemented.

I tried to test on test/flora_mexico. i18n support is switched on as DB-preference with available languages English and Spanish. In local preferences I selected as "Term"-language: Spanish.

There exist a translation for the feature "Common Name" in Spanish in the DB.

However, wherever I tried (in term editor, facts view, facts view context menu) the Spanish translation of the feature was never shown.

This blocks me from reviewing this ticket.

Note: I remember WGB reported a similar problem recently.
