Description

In E+M we do have the misapplied taxon "Hedysarum confertum sec. Greuter & al." (uuid= fd76aa0c-f4ca-484e-ab2c-9bcb03d9448e).

This is a MAN for both

- Hedysarum boveanum Basiner subsp. boveanum   and
- Hedysarum boveanum subsp. europaeum Guitt. & Kerguélen

When searching for Hedysarum confertum and opening "Hedysarum confertum sec. Greuter & al." from search result one gets a dialog to choose the classification:

The problem here is, that the misapplied name belongs to 2 taxa which both belong to the same classification. Therefore the selection does not work but offers the same result for both options.

Solution: probably this can be fixed by offering not a classification selection dialog but an accepted taxon (or a taxon node) selection dialog for misapplied names (and pro parte/partial synonyms).

#8 - 09/06/2018 12:30 PM - Katja Luther

now the chooseAcceptedTaxon dialog also used if a taxon is used as MAN and accepted taxon

- Severity changed from normal to critical

Now, when trying to open the MANs in a Nameeditor I always get

Maybe I am wrong but also from this ticket description and from what I remember it should be possible to open MAN in name Editor by opening the taxon it is a MAN for. This is now not possible anymore which is critical.
Is this related to the changes in this ticket?

I slightly changed the text of the selection dialog. Can you pleas check if this is ok.

I think it should appear only if at least 2 taxa/nodes are involved so "one or more" is not correct and too long.

In general it seems to work now and can be closed.
